

NAME _____

6 Quick Questions

So everyone, including yourself, feels more confident in your abilities to survive a cold-weather scenario, you get no more than 1 wrong before attempting the project.

As always, choose the MOST correct answer.

1. What will be the warmest thing you have?
 - a. Wool
 - b. Cotton
 - c. You
 - d. The air

2. Which factor below increases the rate of conduction?
 - a. Increasing time
 - b. Increasing temperature difference
 - c. Increasing distance
 - d. Decreasing thermal conductivity

3. Layers are good...
 - a. unless they get soaked
 - b. unless they squeeze you too much
 - c. unless they are made of metals
 - d. all of the above

4. Water...
 - a. should be avoided at all costs, both ingesting it and contacting it
 - b. should be avoided being contacted with, unless it is warm
 - c. should avoid being ingested, unless it is warm
 - d. is a worse conductor of thermal energy than air

5. Of the choices below, which is probably the earliest sign of hypothermia?
 - a. Hallucinations
 - b. Voluntary shivering
 - c. Nose bleeds
 - d. Confusion

6. What should you do at the 1st sign of trouble during the simulated survival scenario?
 - a. get through to morning while staying outside no matter what
 - b. cheat and bring hot food with you
 - c. resort to real survival techniques like using fresh urine in a container placed on your skin
 - d. go inside because your grade does not depend on you staying outside at all